

norway

Achieving a multilateral review process

WTO workshop on notifications, 22-24 September 2009

Jonas Skei

Outline

- Norwegian interests in the review process
- Requirements for the review process

Different perspectives on the review process

- Economic perspective
  - Systemic perspective
  - Source of learning for domestic policy formulation
-
- → Impact on available resources

Three requirements

- Notifications have to be there
- Informative and accessible
- Achieving a multilateral review process

Getting notifications in place

- Preparing review process through notifications
- Intensive work during past year
- Recent notifications – three years on domestic support
- Thorough review of routines and systems
  - deadlines
  - division of labour
  - accountability
- Insuring against staff turnover
  - self explanatory systems

Making notifications accessible and informative

- Resource constraints a fact of life
- Presenting policy
  - informative notifications
  - sources as far as possible
- Presenting policy trends and developments
  - interest both in change of policy and in changes in trends
  - electronic spreadsheets?

Conclusion: Achieving a multilateral review process

- An effective review process as a common good
  1. Timely submissions of informative and accessible notifications
  2. Expanding the audience to the wider membership
  3. Demystifying the review process