

WHO, WIPO, WTO Workshop on Innovation in, and Access to, COVID-19 Technologies:

Accessing and Using Information Resources for the Pandemic Response

Dr. Taghreed Adam is a Paediatrician and Health Economist. Having joined WHO in 1999, she focused on methodological and analytical developments in the areas of costing and the economic evaluation of health interventions. Her main research contributions include the multi-country evaluation of IMCI and the WHO-CHOICE project on cost-effectiveness analysis. Dr Adam joined the Alliance for Health Policy and Systems Research in 2008, where she led various projects, notably research to advance the methods and application of “systems thinking” concepts in strengthening health systems of low-income and middle-income countries; and the Alliance’ portfolio on capacity strengthening of health policy and systems researchers. She is currently responsible for the WHO Global Observatory on health Research and Development (R&D). Before joining WHO, she worked with the Egyptian Ministry of Health in their Health Sector Reform Project, particularly in the development of a universal health insurance package for the Egyptian population.
